

Sirs:

I am writing concerning the proposal to limit unwanted telemarketing calls. It is my understanding the proposal would not be as restrictive as the current law enforced in Indiana. This is unacceptable. Prior to signing up for restriction unwanted telemarketing calls our evenings would be interrupted with anywhere from 2 to 4 calls a month. After placing my name on the no call list I only receive about 1 a month. This has greatly increased my families enjoyment of our evenings together. If you feel you should impose a national standard for limiting unwanted telemarketing calls please consider the Indiana law as the minimum acceptable standard. Thank you for your time.
